SLIPPING AWAY.

They are slipping away—those sweet swift years,
Like a leaf on the current cast:
With never a break in their rapid flow,
We watch them as one by one they go
Into the beautiful past.

As silent and swift as a weaver's thread
Or an arrow's flying gleam;
As soft as the languorous breezes bid,
That lift the willow's long golden lid,
And ripple the glassy stream.

As light as the breath of the thistle down,
As fond as a lover's dream:
As pure as the flush on the sea-shell's throat,
As sweet as the wood-bird's wooing note,
So tender and sweet they seem.

One after another we see them pass
Down the dim lighted stair;
We hear the sound of their steady tread
In the steps of the centuries long since dead,
As beautiful and as fair,

There are only a few years left to love;
Shall we waste them in idle strife?
Shall we trample the flowers under our own ruthless feet
Those beautiful blossoms rare and sweet,
By the dusty way of life?

There are only a few sweet years—ah, let
No envious taunts be heard:
Make life's fair pattern of rare design,
And fill up the measure with love's sweet wine,
But never an angry word?

Two Lively Beaux.

"Oh, such a lovely face!" sighed Miss Amelia Hartwell. "Such eyes—such a mustache—really, I couldn't help it, Kitty. Oh, I really could not."

"Yes, Amy; but suppose Miss Hess should find it out?" said Kitty.

"Well, well, what could she do about it?" said Amy. "Tell ma and get me scolded, and lose her situation. I should tell her about the governesses, and I think she'd keep quiet. A girl can't live without any romance in life."

"Only nobody ever introduced you to each other," said Kitty, "and my ma says that you can't tell what any one is if you haven't a proper introduction."

"Yes, and then they introduce you to some stiff old creature, and he pays you a little attention, and you marry. Kitty, I mean to have my fun out. You can tell if you please, but—"

"Oh, Amy," cried Kitty, "I'm no tell-tale. It's only for your good."

Kitty and Amelia were cousins. Kitty fifteen and Amelia seventeen.

Amelia had not as good a disposition as Kitty, and her mother was a mere fashionable woman, who kept the girl as much in the background as possible, lest she should make her look old. So Amy, as she liked to be called, being really grown, and yet treated like a child at home, took her affairs into her own hands, flirted with all the college boys, wrote notes to them, waved her handkerchief from the upper windows, and behaved disgracefully without any one having an inkling of what was going on but serious little Kitty, who was too honorable to betray her cousin, and too young to know how terrible such conduct really was. School-boys and college students were bad enough, but now there had come upon the scene quite a new person, a young man of five and twenty, whom no one knew, but who, having managed to scrape acquaintance with Miss Amy, declared himself an English nobleman, and spoke of great estates, of which, in time, he would be master. Amy swallowed the whole story, and for weeks had taken long walks with him, had accepted a ring, which she dared not wear when at home, and considered herself engaged.

All was going on delightfully, in her opinion, and poor Miss Hess, the governess, was quite hoodwinked. Kitty, trembling little confidante as she was, was quite interested in the affair, but felt herself guilty in keeping the story from her mother. But Amy had no such compunctions.

Now a new scheme was on foot. The lover desired to pay Miss Amy an evening visit, and a time had been selected when mamma and papa were to attend a wedding, and Miss Hess away on a dutiful visit to her old German grand-parents.

"You may call, but you can't stay late, Theodore," Amy had said. 'That dragon of a governess, will be at home at half past ten."

And Theodore had protested that he would not stay late.

"I shall bring a friend," he said, "and he can be company for your cousin, since you insist on having her with you. We'll have a lovely evening."

Then he sighed and looked "so lovely," as Amy declared to Kitty, who, flattered by the idea of the friend who was to "be attentive" to herself, felt it time to preach the little sermon above recorded, but without effect. The visit was to be paid. Miss Amy was to receive her admirer. Kitty was with her. Miss Hess had temporarily departed. The carriage had borne mamma and papa to the scene of the wedding festivities. The servants were having a comfortable supper in the kitchen, and the door bell rang.

"No matter—I'll go, Bridget," called Amy over the balustrades, to the waitress, who was delighted to run back to her supper and a few friends and cousins who had just droped in; and the young lady of the house herself admitted her callers.

They entered rather cautiously and with many glances up the stairs, which Amy attributed to fear of her cruel parents. The young gentleman was attired in the latest style, and wore a large pin and many rings; but his friend was, it is to be confessed, rather shabby, and not over clean.

"Miss Amy," said Theodore, with an air, "this is my friend Adolphus. A fine fellow, but under a cloud just now. His grandfather, the Earl, won't pay his club debts. However, he'll come round after a while. This is Miss Kitty, Dolph."

Dolph made a bow, and backed against the wall.

"Come in," said Amy. "Every one is out. Oh! isn't this lovely?"

"Heavenly!" said Theodore, looking at the bronze ornaments on the mantel and letting his gaze rove to small ornaments. "So you are alone, eh? How delicious! I say, this is a fine place. Not so fine as we are used to at home, but pretty good for America. Your father must be well off, Miss Amy?"

"Yes," said Amy, "I believe he is."

"Lots of silver, and all that?" said the nobleman. "You ought to see the plate at—at the castle."

"Yes," said Amy. "The silver is all up stairs now, though. Ma locks it up when she goes out. There's a great closet between the rooms above. She keeps her jewelry there. It is quite a nice place, for burglars wouldn't be apt to find the door if they didn't know it. It slides in, you know. Pa says it is better than a safe."

"Why, it must be," said Theodore; "how ingenious! There, sit down, and let us chat; or suppose you play for us."

"I'd rather talk," said Amy, sentimentally.

Meanwhile Kitty was growing very miserable. The person introduced as Adolphus was awkward and said little. He was not handsome like Theodore, and he smelt of tobacco and whisky. His grandfather, the Earl, must have been angry with him for some time, she thought. She began to wish that something would happen to break up the party, that they would at least go. Neither of them were gentleman, she felt assured. They stared around them oddly. Theodore arose and dropped the silk curtains over the windows. The men exchanged glances. Could not Amy see that something was wrong?

At that moment Theodore pushed the door into the hall quite shut, and returned to Amy's side. As he did so he put his hand into his pocket and took out a sponge.

"Curious, isn't it?" he said. "I think a sponge is such a curious object. See the little cells."

"I've got one, too," said Adolphus, huskily. "Have you ever seen such a big one?"

"It is large," said Amy.

Kitty, who had been expecting some love-making, and was disappointed, only curled her lip; but the next moment both girls sat staring speechlessly at each other, each with a great sponge thrust into their mouths.

"Tie her to a chair, Dolph," cried Theodore, rapidly binding Amy's arms and ankles with a cord he took from his pocket. "Now, young ladies, you are not going to be hurt. We'll just help ourselves to the pretty things of value that can be carried off easy, and get the silver out of the sliding-closet above, and be off. Don't try to scream—you can't. And don't kick—you'll only hurt yourselves. Day-day."

Away they went up the softly-carpeted staircase. Amy heard the sound of opening drawers and doors overhead. Kitty thought she even heard the clink of silver. But they could neither move nor cry out. In a few moments the two thieves accomplished their purpose and descended the stairs again, each with a bundle on his back.

"Good evening, young ladies," said Theodore. "We're sorry we must go, but pa might come home unexpectedly. By-by."

They were off. The door clanged shut. The servants at their little supper knew nothing, and the two girls both nearly suffocated. Their sleader wrists, cut by the cords that bound them, remained fastened to their chairs.

Glad were they when the good-humored voice of Miss Hess was heard bidding some one good night on the doorstep, and when, bustling into the house, she threw up her hands with exclamations of horror, called for help, and as soon as possible dragged the sponges from the mouths, cut the cords that bound them, and asked for the terrible story, which, with many tears and sobs, Amy told truthfully.

There had been a heavy robbery—money, silver and jewelry were gone. Vainly papa strode the floor, scolding his daughter and bewailing his "ducats."

"I never thought English noblemen could do such things," sighed Amy. "Nobody could think that, papa."

"English noblemen!" laughed the detective, who had appeared upon the scene. "They were two English thieves, Miss, and this is their regular dodge—making love to young ladies and then getting let in. It has to be the servants in England, but the American young ladies are such flirts, and so easily taken in, they've changed their plans."

"I, at least, will not be so easily taken in again, and I shall flirt no more," said Amy.

She kept her word.

Agriculture in the Holy Land.

A recent writer says nothing can well exceed the desolateness of much of the Holy Land. Treeless it is for 20 or 30 miles together. Forests which did exist 30 years ago—for instance, on Mount Carmel and Mount Tabor—fast disappearing; rich plains of the finest garden soil asking to be cultivated, at best but scratched up a few inches deep in patches, with no hedges or boundaries; mountain terraces, naturally or artificially formed, ready to be planted with vines, as the German colony are doing at the foot of Mount Carmel; the villages nothing but mud-huts, dust, dirt and squalor; the inhabitants with scarce clothing enough for decency, their houses ovens; large tracts without a horse or cow, sheep or dog; no pretense at roads, except from Jaffa to Jerusalem, and this like a cart-road over a ploughed field, the rest at best like sheep-walks on the Downs of Sussex, but for far the most part like the dry bed of the most rocky river, where, amid blocks of stone, each makes his way at a foot-pace as best he can, or on smooth, sloping rocks, or over loose stones thrown down from the old walls on either side, which no one offers a finger to remove; nothing upon wheels, not so much as a barrow, to be met with in a ride of over 300 miles. Everything is taxed: every fruit-tree, so none new are planted; every cow or horse, etc.; every vegetable sold out of a private garden. Every eighth egg is not taxed, but taken by the government. In some places the taxes of the district are sold to the highest bidder. The farmer is unable to sell a measure of his corn till all has been collected into a heap and the tax collector has set his sum upon it, from which there is no appeal. Double taxes are expected this year, because, after three years of scarceness, the harvest promises to be abundant. Nothing like a small farm-house is to be found far or near. If there were, the owner is liable to have soldiers or revenue officers quartered upon him, to be boarded and lodged at his expense. The towns are filthy in the extreme, none more so than Jerusalem itself, where, however, taxes are levied from every house for lighting and cleaning the streets, while a sprained ankle or a splash into a hole of blackest dirt is sure to be the result of a momentary carelessness. Nothing is done for the good or improvement of the people or the land by the government. Not only so, but every offer—and I heard of several made by private individuals, or by companies—is at once refused, unless a bribe be first given to the authorities. This is a picture, I believe, in no way overdrawn of that land which was once "flowing with milk and honey." What might it not become again with fair usage and good government? But there is no hope for Palestine while it remains in the hands of its present rulers. The writer goes on to show that the country is worth little to the Turkish government, the entire revenue drawn from it being less than a million dollars a year under this wretched system of misrule and oppression. He suggests that in the present condition of its finances, the porte might be glad to "sell out" for twenty or thirty millions of dollars in hard cash and that an international company for the purchase and government of the country (after the pattern of the old East India company) would find such an investment, even of fifty millions, highly remunerative in the long run. A mercantile crusade of that sort might accomplish what no military one was ever able to achieve,—the rescue of the Holy Land from "the unspeakable Turk," and its restoration to its ancient prosperity.

Stories of the Sea.

The delights of solitude have been fervidly extolled by writers who took good care to keep themselves within hail of the busy hum of men; but its fancied charms have soon palled upon unfortunates of a silent life, either by their own whim, the tryanny of others, or circumstances over which nobody had any control.

Three weeks' experience of Crusoeing sufficed to bring an unwilling solitarian to death's door, but he was a mere lad, wanting three years to be out of his teens. The youth's name was Lord. Getting separated from his messmates while seeking wood and water on one of the Galipagos Islands, he lost himself in the forest. After passing an uncomfortable night there, daylight saw Lord roving in quest of what he might devour, and finding nothing save a big snake, unavailable for staying his appetite, and when night came around again, he was still wandering in a maze of trees, weary with walking, and faint for lack of food, fearing to sleep on the ground lest he should intrude on the privacy of some deadly serpent. This difficulty he surmounted by climbing a very tall tree, and roosting in its branches, unaware that he had a fellow-lodger in a big owl, until, on leaving his airy chamber in the morning, he knocked the bird down, and turned the accident by breakfasting upon the owl, without any further preparation than stripping it of its feathers.

That night Lord was out of the wood, but was not much better off, for, sleeping at the feet of a mountain, he was drenched with a rain, and when morning broke was in anything but a condition for climbing. Climb the mountain, however, he did; from the summit beholding the bay in which his whaler had been, but was not. He saw a brig there, but she was making her way out. Madly he dashed down the mountain side to gain the beach all too late, and becoming oblivious of his disappointment by going off into a dead faint. When he recovered his senses hunger got the better of despair, its pangs being none the less bitter from the knowledge that there was abundance of food in the waters washing his prison, and that he had neither hook to bait nor bait to hook, and must perforce, live as best he might upon berries and seal flesh.

So the dismal days dragged on, the only event breaking their monotonous misery being Lord's nearly coming to grief altogether in grappling with a great seal, rolling into the sea with it, and scrambling out alone as quickly as his weakness allowed. After this bout he contrived to crawl up the mountain again, and to his joy descried a large ship making for the island. The sight gave him new strength, and he managed to get down to the beach just as the ship entered the harbor. Soon a boat was lowered, and he knew no more until his eyes opened upon a crowd of friendly faces. He cried out for water, and he drank till he swooned again, when kindly arms carried him to the boat, and he was soon safe in the care of the famous explorer of the seas, Captain Cook.

Lord did not find the Gallipagos Islands so much to his mind as did an Irishman, who let his ship depart without him, and set up his rest on one of these volcanic islets; dwelling there for seven years in a hovel of his own building, living upon tortoises, seals and fish, washed down with rum obtained from ships in exchange for the potatoes and pumpkins he busied himself in raising.

In 1818, an American sailor was taken off a desolate rock in the South Seas by a boat's crew belonging to H. M. S. Queen Charlotte, whose attention had been drawn to the spot by the smoke of a seaweed fire. He had, three years before, been left there with three companions, all of whom had quickly succumbed, while he had lived on, sustaining life by feeding upon the flesh of birds and drinking their blood.

The find of the Queen Charlotte's men was not so surprising as that of the Flemish seaman Pickman, when, in 1616 his ship grounded near a small island-rock between Scotland and Ireland. Some of his men going in search of eggs, came upon a black hairy creature, who by signs entreated them to come to close acquaintance and finding the strange object to be really a man, they took him on board with them to tell the skipper his story. It was a malancholy one. He and two others, occupants of the passage boat between England and Ireland, had been captured and afterwards cast off by a French privateer. Having nothing eatable save a little sugar with them, one of the three soon died of starvation, the others lived to be driven on the island, where they built a hut out of what was left of the boat, and for six weeks lived upon the sea-mews, sea-dogs, eggs and water. Then the partners in misfortune parted company, one of them disappearing, leaving his forlorn friend in utter ignorance of his fate; he could only surmise that he had fallen into the sea while searching for eggs. Months passed, and the poor fellow lost all hope of deliverance. Winter came and found him clotheless. Compelled to keep within the hut for days together, he only kept starvation at bay by catching sea-mews, as hungry as himself, by baited sticks thrust through the openings in the hovel's walls. So he kept himself alive, until the accidental advent of the London-bound Flemish timber-ship released him from his dreary durance.

It might be supposed that a castaway would receive a brother unfortunate with open arms. It was not so with Pedro Serrano, when he caught sight of a man floating towards the island still bearing his name, of which he had been undisturbed lord for nearly forty years. He jumped to the conclusion that Satan had found him at last; while the newcomer was not a whit less horrified at seeing a creature as naked as Adam before the fall, with a beard reaching to his waist, and a body covered with bristles. When both had recovered from their fright, Serrano, awakening to the duties of hospitality, placed the best food his limited larder afforded before his uninvited guest. For a little while the pair lived amicably together, but only for a little while. Then they dissolved partnership, and avoided each other; becoming reconciled again to embark as friends on board a ship attracted to the island by their signal fire. Pedro reached Spain, was presented to Charles the Fifth, pensioned by that monarch, and passed the remainder of his days in ease and comfort at Panama. His companion, less fortunate, died on the voyage.

Esquimaux Carpentry.

The builder selects snow of the proper consistency by sounding a drift with a cane made for the purpose of reindeer horn, straightened by steaming, and worked down to about half an inch in diameter, with a ferule of walrus tusk or the tooth of a bear on the bottom. By thrusting this into the snow he can tell whether the layers deposited by successive winds are separated by bands of soft snow, which would cause the blocks to break. When the snow is selected he digs a pit to the depth of eighteen inches or two feet, or about the length of the snow block. He then steps into the pit and proceeds to cut out the blocks by first cutting down at the ends of the pit and then at the bottom afterwards, cutting a little channel about an inch or two deep, making the thickness of the proposed block. Now comes the part requiring practice to accomplish successfully. The expert will, with a few thrusts of his knife in just the right places, split off the snowblock and lift it carefully out to await removal to its position on the wall. The tyro will almost inevitably break the block into two or three pieces, utterly unfit for the use of the builder. When two men are building an igloo one cuts the blocks and the other erects the wall. When sufficient blocks have been cut out to commence work with the builder marks with his eye or perhaps draws a line with his knife describing the circumference of the building, usually a circle about ten or twelve feet in diameter. The first row of blocks is then arranged, the blocks placed so as to incline inward, and resting against each other at the ends, thus affording mutual support. When this row is completed the builder cuts away the first and second blocks, slanting in from the ground upward, so that the second tier, resting upon the first row, can be continued on and around spirally, and by gradually increasing the inward slant a perfect dome is constructed of such strength that the builder can lie flat upon the outside while chinking the interstices between the blocks. The chinking is, however, usually done by women and children as the building progresses, and additional protection secured from the winds in very cold weather by banking up, with a large snow shovel, the snow at the base often being piled to the depth of three or four feet. This makes the igloo, perfectly impervious to the weather. When the house is completed the builders are walled in. Then a small hole about two feet square is cut in the wall on the side away from where the entrance is to be located and is used to pass in the lamps and beddihg. It is then walled up and the regular door cut about two feet high and niched at the top. It would bring bad luck to carry the bedding into the igloo by the same door it would be taken out. Before the door is opened the bed is constructed of snow-blocks, and made from one to three or four feet high, and occupies three-fourths of the entire space. The higher the bed and the lower the door the warmer the igloo will be.

Ethel and Mortimer.

Very near us in the steamer Bristol, on the sound sat two people. He wore the face of a man who shaves three times a day, and that white necktie had never seen the starlight before. There was pearl powder on the shoulder of his coat and a tender, dreamy look in her lovely eyes. They sat and looked up at the stars and they didn't care for any solitary thing, any nearer to this earth. "Mortimer," she murmured softly, "Mortimer," his name appeared to be Mortimer, though I couldn't learn whether it was his front name or his after name, "Mortimer, dear," she said, "if we could only live apart from this busy and sordid, unsympathetic world, in one of yon glittering orbs of golden radiance, living apart from all else, only for each other, forgetting the base things of earthly life, the coarse greed of the world and its animal instincts, that would be our heaven, would it not, dear?"

And Mortimer, he said that it would. "There, heart of my own," he said, and his voice trembled with earnestness, "my own darling Ethel, through all the softened radiance of the day and all the shimmering tenderness of night, our lives would pass away in an exalted atmosphere above the base born wants of earthly mortals and far beyond the chattering crowd that lives but for to-day, our lives, refined beyond the common ken——"

And just then the man with the gong came ont. Mortimer, he made a grab at Ethel's hand and a plunge for the cabin door. Ethel just gathered her skirts with her other hand, jumped clear over the back of her chair and after him, and away they went clattering down the cabin, upset a chair, ran into a good, sweet old Quaker lady and banged a bad word out of her before she had time to stop it, down the stairs they rushed, collared a couple of chairs at the nearest table, feed a waiter, and opened the action without skirmishing. I am a man of coarse mould and an earth-born appetite myself, and I wouldn't live in a star so long as I could find a good hotel in America, but long, long before I could get seats at the table for my family, Mortimer and Ethel had eaten two blue-fish, a little rare beef-steak, some corn bread, a plate of hot cakes, two boiled eggs, and a bunch of onions, and the waiter had gone out to toast them some cheese. We have during our wanderings, met several people who wanted to live in a star, where earth-born people with animal appetites couldn't trouble them, and we always found the safest place for an earth-born man when the star-born soul started for the dinner table, was behind a rock. Distrust the aspiring mortal who lives in a plane so elevated that he requires the use of a telescope when he wants to look down at the rest of us. And if he ever wants board at your humble table charge him $15 a week and feed him lots of soup or you'll lose money on him.

The Empress of Austria.

This titled lady is winning golden opinions for herself among the votaries of the chase down in Shropshire, England. Whatever may be said of her taste in pursuing such a pastime, far away from home, and at such an enormous expense to the tax-payers of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, there seems to be but one opinion as to her skill as a hunter of foxes and as a horsewoman. Her feats in hunting three days in succession immediately after traveling nearly 1 000 miles, in clearing stone walls, taking stiff fences and long water jumps, are allowed on all hands to be unprecedented. Her riding has been compared with that of the two acknowledged greatest horsewomen in England, and they are 'nowhere.' For elegance of style, undaunted courage, beautiful seat and light hands, she has no rival. And she is said to enter into the sport with greater enthusiasm than any old fox-hunting squire in Leicestershire—the headquarters of the sport. Her favorite horse is a light bay full blood, who is said to have a temper of his own. On her first mount, when the cry of 'Tally ho! Tally ho! Give away!' was heard, the bay broke away at a tremendous pace through the crowd, seemingly overpowering its rider, but the empress soon proved equal to the occasion. She quickly pulled him together and turned him around, giving him at the same time such an introduction to whip and spur that he has not attempted any similar pranks since. Her habit is of dark blue, with trimming of fur around the collar, and it is said to be rather 'cutty sark' in its longitude. She has a pocket in her saddle for a fan, which, after a sharp spin, she takes out and uses freely. Though of light weight, weighing only nine stone, her muscle and power of endurance are something remarkable. One day she rode ten hours over the most difficult county, without pulling up. To keep up this form she exercises on a private course, going over five pair of gates, water jumps, etc., every day besides going through a regular course of gymnastics. In this way she maintains a state of health which enables her to ride long distances without fatigue. She brought over with her ten hunters for her own use. Thirty-five more are provided for her suite and servants, as well as ten or twelve average horses, whilst the total number of her suite and servants is no less, I am told, than eighty.

Use Short Words.

Ex-Governor Seymour advocated the use of short words at the Utica educational convention the other day. Among other things he said: "I have always thought that, on the trial of John F. Knapp, for murder, that the jury found him guilty, not because the proof was so strong, for the judge thought it weak, but for the reason that Mr. Webster, put before them the scene of the old man's death in a way so graphic that they took his speech for proof.

William H. Maynard, a very able man, who stood high in this county and State, once wrote out a speech for the Fourth of July in words of one syllable. His strength was very much due to the fact that in thought and speech he made it a rule to use as few words as he could, and those that were short and clear. If he had lived out his term of three-score years he would have been known as one of the great men of our State.

I do not mean to say, that the mere fact simply of the word being short, make it clear, but it is true that most clear words are short, that most long words we get from other tongues, and the mass of men do not know exactly what they mean, and I am not sure that scholars always get the same ideas from them."

A Pacific Coast Bandit.

Not long ago Governor Perkins, of California, issued a warrant upon a requisition from the Government of Lower California, for the arrest of Clodimero Cota, and his incarceration upon the Mexican man-of-war Democrata, to await departure for Mexico. Cota was once an ambitious man of great influence in Lower California, and has had an adventurous career. He is a nephew of General Emanuel Markes, of the Mexican army, is about 50 years of age, tall and well built and of handsome and intelligent appearance. His career as a bandit is perhaps due mainly to circumstances which defeated his ambitious projects in affairs of State. He aspired to be Governor of California, which he proposed to govern as a province of his own. With this scheme in view he was a faithful follower of Lerdo and an uncompromising enemy of Diaz. Upon the accession of the latter to the Presidency of the Republic he lost most of his followers and all hopes of success as a revolutionist. He refused to surrender, however, and became an outlaw. From this it was but a step to the life of a bandit, and he became a terror to the merchants and peaceable and wealthy people all over Lower California. He frequently kidnapped wealthy persons and held them for ransom, after the manner of the Italian brigands, and pillaged a great many small towns along the coast, retreating to the mountains when the opposition became too strong for him. His band, which six years ago numbered about 200 men, by losses in his various predatory incursions and desertions became reduced, until about a month and a half ago, he disbanded this remnant and with two of his trusty lieutenants fled to San Francisco. A published sensational story which charges him with stealing and carrying away a wealthy Spanish lady to the mountains is said by well-informed men to be untrue His operations have been directed principally against the wealthy and he has many friends among the poor people. Although he made a great deal of money in his raids he always scattered it with a lavish hand and among the criminal classes was the beau ideal of a bandit chief. However, the reigning powers in Mexico and the business portion of the State are very bitter against him. People who are familiar with his standing in Lower California express the opinion that if he reaches there he will be speedily tried convicted and shot. Upon being transferred to the Mexican man-of-war Cota was recognized by the officers as the leader of what was known as the Marquez revolution in Lower California. In his bandit career, at the head of about 250 filibusters and guerillas, flourishing towns, villages and haciendas were burned and destroyed. During one raid on the town of Loretto they tied an old man to a tree and some of the gang are said to have outraged the three daughters of the helpless victim. The gang was finally broken up, what was left of it, by a strong force of government troops and some of the survivors are said to have fled into Arizona prior to the departure of their leader for San Francisco.

Something for Railway Travelers.

Recent decisions of state supreme courts contain some points of interest to railway travelers and others. A railway company is liable for injuries to a person traveling on a "shipper's pass," although such pass stipulates that the company shall not be liable for injuries done to the person using it. The evidence of a person injured as to the amount of damages substained by him is clearly incompetent. He may describe his injuries, but it is for a jury to determine the question of damages A rule prohibiting passengers from riding on the platform of a railway car is a reasonable regulation; and one who violates it without some reasonable excuse or necessity, cannot be said to be free from negligence if the act contributes to his injury. An individual is not a passenger after he has left a moving train and is not entitled to the protection of the railway company. When one buys a ticket of a railroad corporation he is ordinarily a passenger of the corporation for the time when he reasonably and properly starts from the ticket office or waiting room in the station to take his seat in the car of the train, until he has reached the station to which he is entitled to be carried, and has had an opportunity by safe and convenient means to leave the train at the station. It is the duty of the corporation to furnish all the means and necessary employes to guard passengers against all injuries which human foresight may prevent. A passenger leaving a moving train ceases to be a passenger, and to have the rights of a passenger, who her he leaves it when at full speed between stations, or has been carried past the platform of the station. He must wait until the train comes to a full stop. A custom in the management of a depot yard of a railroad company that is switching cars therein it is not the company's duty to have a brakeman or other persons on each car or group of cars, separately in motion, to give warning to men at work in the yard, but that the men in such cases must look out for themselves, would not relieve a brakeman actually in charge of a moving car, who should see it approaching a workman upon the track, from the duty of stopping or warning him of its approach; and, therefore, the company would not be relieved from liability to such workman for any injury thus caused.

A Novel House.

One of the most interesting objects offered to public inspection at the Sydney International Exhibition was a dwelling house exclusively made of paper and furnished throughout with articles manufactured from the same material. Walls, roof, flooring, and stair-cases alike consisted of carton-pierre; the carpets and curtains, bed steads, lamps, sheets and counterpanes, towels, boot-jacks, baths, kitchen utensils, etc., were one and all preparations of paper mache, as were the very stoves used for heating the rooms, in which large fires were kept burning daily throughout the duration of the exhibition. Several banquets were given in the paper house by its owners to the commissioners, members of the press and foreigners of distinction. All the plates and dishes, knifes and forks, bottles and drinking vessels, used at the entertainments were fabricated entirely and solely of paper. Should these paper buildings come into vogue they may be expected to superinduce some striking changes in the rates of fire insurance, at present calculated upon a basis of bricks and mortar.

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

Bellefonte, Pa., Feb 1.

Our grave republican Senators are getting very tired of Mahone, but they will get more tired yet before they will be able to elect Gorham Secretary and Riddleberger Sergeant-at-arms.

Senator Don Cameron makes out a strictly first class character bill for Virginia's mongrel Senator, Mahone. Don gives the people of Pennsylvania a big dose when he asks them to swallow the following, or even to believe that Don himself is candid in what he says. At the rate and style he has been making speeches in the senate recently he ought soon to look around for somebody to endorse his own integrity. Here is what he says of Mahone:

Was not the Senator from Virginia (Mahone) ostracised by the Democratic side of the Chamber? Dare any one deny his courage? Dare any one refer to his past record? Dare any one speak of him as a man not fit to associate with honorable Senators? Was he not the peer of any man on the floor and yet had it not been announced that no Democrat would even pair with him? Had he not been openly insulted day after day by the Democratic side? He was not recognized as a friend and a brother Senator—and why? Because he had the manhood to dissent from the political opinions of the other side; because he had dared to say that he would act according to his convictions; because he had the hardihood to assert his right in the American Senate.

We move to amend Don's speech by striking out all after the word "why" and insert as follows: "Because he has made a dirty and corrupt bargain with me and other republican senators, selling himself and his vote in consideration of the election of the famous Riddleberger as Sergeant-at-Arms, and of controlding the federal appointments in Virginia."

LET IT PASS.

There is a bill now before the legislature, which if it becomes a law will effectually put a quietus to the small boy's toy-pistol. The bill entitled "an act to prohibit the sale to minors of deadly weapons, gun powder and explosive substances in cities of this commonwealth." It makes the violation of the law a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $300 and imprisonment not exceeding one year.

The New York Tribune says that threefourths of the time of the president is occupied in hearing applications for office, and that the cabinet officers employ at least one half of their business hours in the same way. One of the arguments against the democrats last fall was that their accession to power would be attended by a wild rush for office. Upon this argument heavy assessments were made upon the office-holders and paid all the more rapidly. But it appears from the confessions of leading republican newspapers that with a republican succession there has been as wild a scramble for office as if a democratic president had been elected.

Boss Kelly Victorious.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The annual election for sachems of Tammany Society, held to-night at the wigwam, proved the most exciting held in many years. The Kelly faction from the outset have been confident of success and the other party, headed by Judge McAdam, were just as confident that victory would be theirs. The polls were opened at 7.30. Three tickets were in the field. The polls closed at 10 o'clock. The election resulted in the success of the Kelley ticket, which was elected by a majority of 50. The total number of votes cast was 711.

The new Russian Czar has shown his liberal spirits by issuing a decree to the effect that no male Russian between the ages of ten and eighteen will be allowed to emigrate without the permission of the authorities. They must stay in their own country as food for cannon.

Without desire to wound the susceptibilities of the Senators at Washington, it is only speaking the truth to tell them that only about one American citizen in five thousand is reading their able speeches. The public is attending to its business, and its only thought about the wrangle in the Senate is one of weariness. It is impossible to get up any political agitation at this time. The people have had all the politics they want for the present. Even the dying throes of Bossism excite little interest outside the newspapers and the limited circle of working politicians.—New York Tribune.

The man who cast the first vote for Garfield at Chicago, Mr. William A. M. Greer, of Hazleton, in this State, receives his reward in an appointment as Third Assistant Postmaster General.

THE next Republican state convention will be held at Harrisburg, Sept. 8th.

The number of emigrants now arriving is large enough to excite comment. Last year the total number was 327,371, but the number for the first three months of this year exceeded that for the corresponding period of last year by ten thousand. If this rate of increase is maintained throughout it will bring the total immigration of the year well up to half a million. The largest proportion of the arrivals are Germans and they are apparently well supplied with money. They are mostly destined for the West, although the Southwest is getting a larger proportion than in former years, and the Middle States are absorbing some.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., April 23, '81.

There are a number of sensations in in Washington affairs just now. It is said, and this is most important, that President Garfield has energetically expressed his desire for the transaction of executive business, and that Republican Senators have agreed to hold a caucus next week to consider the subject. It will be urged by some Republican Senators that to proceed to such business is not to back down from their present position and by others to do so would exactly that I think the caucus will be held, and that the consideration of nominations and treaties with Foreign Governments will take the place of discussions and votes on the Mahone treaty. I shall be surprised too, if after once tasting the delight of performing legitimate work, the Republicans insist on returning to the dry subject of electing a Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Star sensation—and it is the greatest for some years, is caused by changes, and rumored changes in Post Office Department officials. Speaking with some personal knowledge of Gen. Brady, just driven out of the department, and some acquaintence with the methods of transacting business in the Department, I have no hesitation in saying that nine tenths of the stories of fraud are false. Neither the Post-Office Department nor any other has been properly conducted for many years, if ever, and irregularities are perpetually sanctioned in all of them that would drive any business man in the world to ruin. In the business ways of his office I doubt not Gen. Brady found much that was reprehensible, tolerated it while he was there, and left it there. He is not a reformer. I believe he did the best he could for the country and for the branch of service over which he presided with the defective system he found in operation. I do not believe he made a dishonored dollar in the four or five years of his service.

All the departments must now reorganize. They should do so I have no doubt, at least once in every four years.

It is a much discussed question among thinking men how much damage to the Republican party an exposure of inefficiency and irregularity in most of the departments will cause. The best opinion is, that it will do more to riffle the party than all the quarrels that are going on between leaders.

The Speech of Senator Frye on Wednesday last, caused almost a sensation also. It was thought by some to have been delivered after a full consultation between Secretary Blaine and Senator Frye, even if the President had not sanctioned it. But this seems not to have been the case. Senator Frye is not the servant, or mouth piece of any individual. The bitter speech he delivered he was his own. He may have believed he was representing the people of Maine, though in that he was most certainly mistaken, but he did not, and did not intend, to represent those in authority.

THE GREAT
Bee Hive
STORES.

Having given the Gents' Department ample time to explain its good qualities, we will now turn our attention to the Ladies' Department, to which we are paying our utmost attention to have the most complete in Centre county. We do not like to include Philadelphia, but in most departments they cannot beat us.

Our Mr. Bauland has just returned from the East, having purchased the largest and finest stock of Dry Goods, for cash, ever brought to Bellefonte, which we will sell for cash at such low prices as to astonish the public.

As the amount of goods purchased for this Spring is so immense, it will be impossible this time to mention many specialities. We expect most of our goods will be here this week, and will try to have them ready for sale during this week.

We will have the largest, finest and cheapest stock of Dress Goods ever shown. We wish to inform you of a few bargains that will not be sold again for the money. These prices defy competition: 1 case of Cotton Beiges or Wash Poplins at 8 cts. per yard, which one of the Philadelphia houses is making such a fuss about, and their price is 10 cts 1 case of Atlantic Cashmeres at 12 cts. per yard, a big bargain in Philadelphia at 12½, but are cheap at 15 cents per yard. 1 lot of all-wool Cashmeres, black and colored, yard wide, at 40 cents per yard, cheap at 50 cts. per yard, and a great many other bargains too numerous to mention.

Our stock of Silks is complete. A full line of Plain and Fancy Silks from 50 cts per yard and upwards

Ladies, you can afford to waste a full day to look at our stock of Lawns, Madras-Ginghams, and choice Cambrics. We have about a ½ case of Madras-Ginghams at 13 cents per yard, which are selling in Philadelphia at 15 cts. per yard.

In Domestics we have everything that is manufactured, and as we buy these goods direct from the mills, we will sell them at jobber's prices. Call and examine for yourselves.

To Housekeepers we are a blessing as we are selling such goods for so little money that the expense of fitting up a house is a trifle. Just think, Linen Damask at 20 cts. per yard; all Linen Napkins at 65 cts. a doz; Towels 5 cts. each, and everything else in proportion.

Shoes, shoes, shoes, at such low prices that we will not mention any this time.

Now about Carpets, which is a very important thing to every one, we just have the prettiest stock ever shown, all new styles and all new prices. They are so cheap that we expect to have our stock sold in 30 days.

All the latest novelties in Gloves, Hosiery, Ribbons, Ties and Fancy Goods.

We added this Spring a new Department to our already immense stock which will please the Ladies. A full line of Muslin Underwear, especially manufactured for us, made in the best workmanship, for less money than you can make them at home.

Our Notion and Small wear Departments are always complete.

Samples sent free on application, and special attention paid to mail orders.

It is our aim to supply the public with all their wants in our line, and any article not on hand, no matter how small a quantity is wanted, or how small the purchase is, we will procure it for them.

An early call is solicited.

Respectfully,

Bauland & Newman

THE NEW VICTOR.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1878.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the peer of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a rare combination of desirable qualities. Its shuttle is a beautiful specimen of mechanism, and takes rank with the highest achievements of inventive genius. Note.—We do not lease or consign Machines, therefore, have no old ones to patch up and re-varnish for our customers.

We Sell New Machines Every Time.

Send for Illustrated Circular and prices. Liberal terms to the trade. Don't buy until you have seen the

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28., '81.

DEININGER & BUMILLER,
Editors and Proprietors.

Local Department.

—Child's suits at the Philadelphia Branch at $1.50 up.

—Scarlet fever is raging fearfully throughout the Buffalo Run region.

—LADIES, if you want a nice, stylish walking shoe, go to Stam's store.

—Job printing—in the best style and at lowest prices—at the Journal office. Bring in your orders.

—Mr. L. C. Runkle opened a subscription school on Monday with quite a good number of pupils.

—A good second hand two horse wagon for sale cheap for cash or on short time. Inquire at the Journal office.

—Stam has just received the finest lot of men's and boys' straw hats in town.

—Several brand new sewing machines of the best standard makes, for sale at the Journal store, cheap for cash.

—The Methodist ministers of Trenton have passed resolutions discountenancing the holding of funerals on Sunday.

—Several children have died from over exertion in jumping rope, this spring, in different parts of the state.

FOR TENDER FEET.—The Journal store sells the celebrated Nelson Seamless Stocking, just the thing for tender feet. Call and see them.

—Dr. John F. Harter, Dentist, has removed his office to the second floor of Tomlinson's grocery, where he will be happy to receive his personal and professional friends. tf

—Mrs. Polly Royer, widow of Geo. W. Royer, near Rebersburg, will have public sale, Friday April 29th. Four good horses, several cows, and a full stock of farming implements will be sold.

—Our borough fathers will have their regular meetings on the first Monday evening of every month. Those having business with our council will please take notice.

—Next Union Co., Agricultural fair comes off Oct. 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th. Hope it will for once not hit the same time our county fair will be held.

—Eggs are not made out of very solid stuff. That's what Al. Frank found out, when he crossed the gutter at Snook's and dropped two boxes off the wagon.

—Dr. John F. Harter and Mr. B. F. Kister publish their cards in this week's Journal—the one as a dentist, the other a shoemaker. Both are first rate fellows and good mechanics. Patronize them.

—Reports from Kansas state that the winter wheat crops are in excellent condition throughout the state, but the condition of the spring wheat is less good. With seasonable rains Kansas will have a full crop.

—If your hair is coming out or turning gray, do not murmur over a misfortune you can so easily avert. Ayer's Hair Vigor will remove the cause of your grief by restoring your hair to its natural color, and therewith your good looks and good nature.

—Last Thursday Mr. Wm. H. Homan, son of Mr. John S. Homan, below Aaransburg, was badly hurt from the weight of a quantity of earth which fell upon him while working on the rail road extension in Snow Shoe. He was taken to his father's from Bellefonte in a carriage.

—Benjamin Bohme, a young man residing at Roaring Creek, Columbia county, shot and killed himself because Miss Alice Long, a young lady to whom he had been paying attention for some time rejected him.

—This is court week, and a very busy time at Lewin's Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, Pa.

—No matter what the weather is—cool, cold, warm, hot, Lewin at the Philadelphia Branch Clothing Store will sell you a suit that will suit the state of the weather as well as the state of your purse exactly. Just try Lewin.

—GILMORE & Co., 629 F. Street, Washington, D. C., request every Soldier or Sailor who served in the Union Army during the late war, to send his name and post office address on a postal card. Write plainly name, post office, county and state. In return you will receive a copy of a new paper, AMERICA, containing valuable information.

—A certain lady of Sunbury has for some time past been carrying a policy on the life of an old citizen of Insuranceville. Last week two agents called upon her and persuaded her to sell the policy at a small advance on the original purchase. This she did, signing all the necessary papers. The next day the old person died, and the policy was worth $1,500.—Sunbury Dem.

—If you want an extra fine article in the line of tooth powder—and every body should use such an article—Dr. John F. Harter is the man to supply you. We have tried it and know wherof we speak. tf

—A young man named John Williams issued a general invitation to the inhabitants of Pottsville to fight him on Sunday evening. The first person to respond was an officer, who took charge of him for the night.

—About twenty barrels of paint applied to the houses and several tons of lime to the outbuildings and fences, would improve the appearance of our town vastly. Suppose you do your share of the work this spring.

—Millheim now has the neatest, coziest barber shop in the valley, and one of the best barbers in it the state can produce. His name is J. C. Springer.

LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST.—That magnificent establishment Bauland & Newman's Bee Hive Store, Bellefonte Pa., is just chock full of goods of every grade and price. Every one can be exactly suited, and at prices too that absolutely defy competion. If you go to Bellefonte do not fail to go and see the Bee Hive. They will treat you kindly, sell you very cheaply and send you away rejoicing. Just try it. 2t

—A sad evidence of the moral condition of a portion of the population of New York can be gathered from the police reports. On a single day recently twenty-six women were arraigned before one justice for being either drunk or disorderly, or both. Of the number tried, twenty-five were sent to prison for a month.

(Communicated.)

The Georges Valley Union Sunday School was again started up for the summer season on last Sunday. The following officers were elected: President—Jacob Jamison; Superintendent—Samuel Harter; Assistant—W. B. Krape; Secretary—J. David Wagner; Librarians—J. C. Finkle, Robert Hettinger; Treasurer—John Coldron. This school has been in a flourishing condition for a number of years and we hope it may come up to its full measure of usefulness during the coming summer.

—A bill is now before the State Legislature, and seems likely to pass, which provides that the county commissioners shall receive regular salaries. The amount of salary is proportioned according to the population of a county, and in the smallest counties the salary is not to be less than $400 per annum. The largest counties will pay about $1,800 or $2,000.

—You can buy more for your produce at Stam's than at any other place in town. Just try it. Butter 27 cts.

—At H. H. Tomlinson's store you can buy 2 pds. of Roasted Coffee, put up in 1 pd. papers for 25 cts. Arbuckla's best at 20 cts. Finest Loaf Syrup at 50 cts. pr. gallon. Best Green Coffee at 17 cts. Standard A White Sugar, 10 cts. Best Extra C White Sugar, 8 cts, and in fact you can buy anything you want at the very lowest market price.

A full line of men's, women's and children's shoes just received.

Butter 26 cents
Eggs 17 "
Give him a call.

—On Tuesday evening one of the show windows of J. Eisenhuth's Drug-store was thrown in with a tumbler. Several of our younger men, we hear were fooling with each other, when one threw the glass after another, who walked down street, missed him, but hit a pane at Eisenhuth's. Remember don't throw missiles in the borough, its too dangerous a business.

Fatal Shooting of a Sheriff.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 21.—W. F. Beattie, sheriff of Crittenden county, Ark., was killed this morning near Marion, Ark., twelve miles northwest of this city, while attempting to arrest a negro burglar. Deputy Sheriff Maddox was wounded by the negro who made his escape.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling-out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.
FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS.

News Miscellany.

After a thorough canvass of the winter wheat regions by its representatives the Chicago Times has come to the conclusion that the yield of the country at large will be nearly as great as for the last two years, as the acreage of wheat has very greatly increased. There is no danger of a scarcity.

The town of Janesville, Clearfield county, has a population of 200, and of that number twenty-one persons have died of typhoid fever in two months. During the winter the town was scourged with diphtheria, and the schools had to close in consequence. The fever followed, and although it was checked for a time it broke out again in Mr. Spencer's family and spread in the town at a frightful rate. Six of Mr. Spencer's children have died.—Ex.

The cost of a kiss is variable according to locality. In a Brooklyn church it isn't rated high either as an offense against good morals or in its commercial value, but in the Baltimore post office it costs $5,000 to take a kiss without the lady's consent. Miss Mary A. Murray has just recovered $5,000 from Postmaster Tyler for an attempt to kiss her when employed in his office.

Four wicked Pottsville boys caught a rat, smeared it with turpentine and set fire to it. The rodent ran up the leg of a good boy's trousers and frightened the good boy nearly out of his wits.

General Joseph Lane, formerly United States senator from Oregon, and candidate for vice president on the Breckenridge ticket in 1860, died at his home in Roseburg, Oregon, on Tuesday night, aged seventy-nine.

Thrown from His Wagon and Killed.

MILFORD, Pa., April 18.—Benjamin H. Rose, the wealthiest farmer in the Delaware Valley, was instantly killed this afternoon by being thrown from his wagon. He was going home intoxicated, when his horse became frightened and, jumping to one side of the road, precipitated the wagon down an embankment. Mr. Rose was thrown out and his neck was broken. He leaves two children.

An old man named David Liddick, aged seventy-eight years, committed suicide at his residence in Watts township, Perry county, recently. The old man carefully loaded a short rifle, seated himself on a chair, rested the butt of the gun against the bed near by, held the muzzle against his forehead with one hand and touched the trigger with the other, thus causing instant death.

A local newspaper man is generally expected to be everywhere, see everything, and catch every item afloat, simply because it is his profession. But he can't do it. His friends can help him through by sending or bringing such items as are of interest. All manner of legitimate local news goes to make up an interesting paper, and will be received with thanks.

The Newport News of Perry county, Pa., says: "John C. Harris, who died at Shermansdale on Friday was insured for not a cent less than $300 000. Every company in the State, and some out of it, that would issue certificates on his life, were 'full on him.' Speculators in this town alone carried no less than $60,000 on his life. It isn't considered such horrid business any more to wait for dead men's shoes." We can see nothing wrong in the transaction if a person allows you to insure him (or her) if you don't go into the killing business.

There has been an organization in this State for many years denominated "Liquor League." At several elections it has exercised much political power. In 1875 it held the balance and it re-elected Gov. Hartranft at that time. In other political contests its power has also been potential. It not only controls those in the organization and such as they can individually influence, but also contributes large sums of money to corruption purposes. Ever since 1870, and perhaps for a longer period, this League has acted in concert with the Radical leaders, and has in fact been subject to their orders at all times until very recently. For some unknown or undefined reason the League has altogether lost its power and the Republican Legislature has been suddenly smitten with the beauties of prohibition! Wherefore this wonderful occurence? Is there any "pinching" in this liquor prohibition amendment business? Or is it only intended to provide free grog for a few elections to come?—Clinton Democrat.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

She Kills a Big Bear and Captures a Couple of Cubs.

From the Wytheville (Va.) Enterprise.

Some days since a farmer's wife in Grayson county, whose name we have not obtained, was frying meat for dinner at her house, situated near a mountain range in a rather wild and sequestered place, her husband in the meantime being engaged at work some distance from the house. The savory odor of the bacon was scented by a couple of young bears that were ranging on the premises and enticed them to follow the direction from which it came. They kept the scent until it even drew them into the house where the meat was on the fry. The lady of the house secured the strange visitors, and her knowledge of bears led her to think that these young ones had strayed from their maternal parent, which would soon follow their trail and hunt them up. Her judgment was correct, for it was but a few moments before the old she bear came in sight—an enormous black bruin, of a kind which, as many of our readers know, will fight to the death for their young. The woman drew down from its rack the old true, tried and trusty mountain rifle that had perhaps served on similar missions to that to which it was about to be called many times before, and fastening the door she made a loophole of the window and waited the approach of her bearship within a sufficient distance for a shot. She waited not long and fired, the ball taking effect, but not proving fatal. The report of the rifle drew her laboring husband from his work, who, coming near the house, was chased several hundred yards by the bear, which then gave up pursuit and returned in quest of her young. The plucky backwoodsman's wife had in the meantime reloaded the rifle, and with the second shot the old she bear keeled over, underside topmost, and "yielded up the ghost." The cubs, we are told, sold at Independence, the county seat of Grayson, for $26, and the skin of the bear, which was very large, brought the sum of $3 at the same place.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

An advertiser who spends upwards of $1,000 a year, and who invested less than $350 of it in this List, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST
IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST.
IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single States ranges from $2 to $80. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $25. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $2,080.14. The list includes 932 newspapers of which 187 are issued DAILY and 765 WEEKLY. They are located in 788 different cities and towns, of which 26 are State Capitals, 363 places of over 5,000 population, and 468 County Seats. For copy of List and other information address GEO. P. AGRICULTURE.

TROUBLESOME INSECTS.—These may infest your plants, and if allowed to remain do much damage. Green fly—not always green, but varying from yellow to green according to what it eats—is the commonest pest and the easiest to get rid of. You may bruise them to death between your fingers with a sponge or brush; but if you merely rub them off, they fall down only to jump up again. Better take your plants out to the kitchen or woodshed, and there wash off all vermin. This you can do with clean water. In green-houses, fumigating with tobacco smoke and dipping the crops never the roots of plants in tobacco water are the ways employed to destroy green fly. Red spider is a minute insect, exceedingly destructive and hard to eradicate. It appears like brown, red or yellow particles of dust, usually on the under side of the leaves. Its presence is observeable by the seared, sickly, yellowish look of the leaves. Frequent and thorough washings with water will remove it.

Scales infest leaves and stems, and sometimes stick close to the bark as to appear beneath it. They must be washed, rubbed or scraped off. Mealy bugs are covered with a white powder and lodge on the under sides of leaves, at leaf and branch joints, in wounds, or anywhere where there is a ragged place, and have good choice for flower clusters. They may be wiped or brushed off, and, if in holes or crevices, bruised to death by a pointed stick. Thrip is a nimble black insect, exceedingly pernicious, and very fond of ferns, azaleas, lilies of any sort, callas and the like. Their work is discernible in rusty brownish or yellowish blotches and tracings on the leaves, which they very soon destroy. The old or black ones are hard to kill. They should be bruised to death by the fingers. The young or yellowish ones should be bruised by sponging. Better take the infested plants outside, wipe off the vermin with a sponge, shower with clean water afterwards, and then return the plants to the window. In greenhouses thrips are killed by tobacco smoke.

FLOWER GARDEN AND LAWN.—The planning for the planting of ornamental trees should have been done before the time for setting them. Evergreens may be left until later, and will need more care; their roots should never be allowed to become dry. The lawn will need a dressing of some kind; ashes, guano, or some fertilizer may be applied; use manure only when it is fine and thoroughly rotted, with no weed seeds alive in it. For new lawns upon a heavy soil, sow Kentucky Blue Grass; on light sandy soil, red top with white clover, is best; all the way from three to six bushels to the acre are advised. Sow half the seed in one direction and cross-sow with the other half. This work should be done as soon as the land has been put in the proper condition. Where sodding is to be done first thoroughly enrich the soil, make the surface even, and to press the sods down firmly use a board and heavy pounder. If the walks and drives need repairs, attend to them when the ground has settled. Beds of bulbs may be uncovered as soon as the frosty nights are over. If beds of flowers are to be planted the designs should be made, and their location in the grounds, and other details decided upon beforehand.

THE question is raised whether it is right to color butter artificially. Since the coloring of butter is probably due to coloring matter in the food, as well as to the power of the cow to remove the same from the food, the question may be asked whether these is any more wrong in putting the color into the butter than in supplying food to the animal which will cause the cow to give milk, the cream of which will make yellow butter. At all events, as the coloring is now made from harmless substances, and the colored butter is as pure and good as the uncolored (when properly done), and as the people prefer the colored butter, we think the benefit of the doubt belongs on the side of the farmer.

IN selecting tomatoes for seed do not be over anxious to obtain those which ripen first, but select good large, smooth ones, in fact the best specimens you can find upon the vines.

Cast iron was not in commercial use before the year 1700, when Abraham Darby, an intelligent mechanic, who had brought some Dutch workmen to establish a brass foundry at Bristol, England., conceived the idea that iron might be substituted for brass. This his workmen did not succeed in effecting, being probably too much prejudiced in favor of the metal with which they were best acquainted. A Welsh shepherd-boy named John Thomas had, some time previous to this, been received by Abraham Darby into his workshop on the recomendation of a distant relative. While looking on during the experiments of the Dutch workmen, he said to Abraham Darby that he thought he saw where they had missed it. He begged to be allowed to try; so he and Abraham Darby remained alone in the workshop all night struggling with the refractory metal and imperfect moulds. The hours passed on and daylight appeared, but neither would leave his task; and just as morning dawned they succeeded in casting an iron pot complete. The boy entered into an agreement with Abraham Darby to serve him and keep the secret. He was enticed by the offer of double wages to leave his master, but he continued faithful, and from 1709 to 1822 the family of Thomas were confidential and much-valued agents to the descendants of Abraham Darby. For more than one hundred years after the night in which Thomas and his master succeeded in making an iron casting in a mould of fine sand contained in frames and with air holes the same process was practiced and kept secret at Colebrook-Dale with plugged key-holes and barred doors.

A a recent meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society of England Mr. Shirley Hibberd exhibited a lot of home-grown water cresses, which created considerable interest among the members. The display consisted of a series of pans fifteen inches in diameter, each filled with a luxurious growth of the tender cresses. The exhibitor claims that the pan culture of watercresses may be profitably pursued with the aid of a frame or cool plant house during the severest winter weather. The cresses shown were produced in the course of six weeks, and had been daily gathered for the table, thus showing how rapidly and profuse they grow. According to the testimony of Mr. Hibberd any one may supply his table with this wholesome and delicious salad any time of year without much trouble or expense.

DOMESTIC.

RAG CARPETS.—A lady of large experience, in making these carpets, says that her way of collecting materials for them is as follows: When a garment is laid aside for good, my practice is to rip it to pieces, wash thoroughly, and cut, sew, and wind it into balls. I have a tight barrel, with a paper spread over the bottom, and a sprinkling of fine tobacco scattered over it. I put my balls in the barrel and every spring cut the rags at my leisure. The children can sew and wind them just as well as any one. I sprinkle fine tobacco over the balls, and tuck an old sheet over them, cover the barrel up tight, and it is all right till I get ready to add another contribution. In this way I get my rags ready and keep the house clear from an accumulation of old, dirty garments that are a nuisance any way. In making a carpet I allow a pound and a quarter of rags to fill a yard of cloth; for a room twenty-five feet square I calculate to have about thirty five or thiry-six pounds of rags. If there are any odds or ends left over, they are woven into a rag, that can be spread before stoves or doors. I never expend time or labor coloring rags. The last carpet, I made had rags enough for seventy-eight yards, and I never felt the labor at all; it was done at odd jobs, and I was astonished to find I had such a quantity finished. Allow three knots and a half of warp to the yard. The labor of reeling and coloring the warps is the hardest part of the work for me. I know ever so many people who color and pass a whole season over a carpet; but when finished it is only a rag carpet. The prettiest one I ever saw was just brown and blue, narrow stripes of each and shaded from dark to light; a little black was woven in to give the dark contrast. One reason why we enjoy rag carpets is this: We are not afraid to use them, and when one is worn out we can make another just as good. Sweeping carpets wears them out faster than using them, by half. A stiff broom should never be used on carpets, picking up shreds and bits is the best way, and brush the dust off with a soft brush.

[Freeport, (Ill.) Bulletin.]

There is now a substance which is both professionally and popularly indorsed and concerning which, Mr. J. B. Ferschweiller, Butteville, Oregan, writes: I have often read of the many cures effected by St. Jcoab's Oil and was persuaded to try the remedy myself. I was a sufferer from rheumatism and experienced great pains, my leg being so swollen that I could not move it. I procured St. Jacob's Oil, used it freely and was cured.

A BIT of alum kept near a wash basin or towel rack and frequently rubbed over the face while yet damp, will do much toward removing tan and preventing unsightly pimples. I have never found anything better for cankerous sores on the lips and tongue. If mixed with vinegar and water, salt and pepper, it will cure ordinary sore throat; grated and stirred in molasses it is splendid for croup. I have known cases of tothache, when all the common pungent remedies failed, to be instantly quieted by inserting in the cavity of the tooth a bit of moist cotton sprinkled with equal quantities of pulverized alum and salt. Ready good bread can be made from grown wheat if one tablespoonful of butter are added to each ordinary sized baking, and it is excellent in cheap molasses cookies to give the desired crispness when little butter is used. A really good cement can be made by melting a bit of alum and using immediately, but one must be quick or the value will be lost. A gentleman has just told me how he so thoroughly deadened the nerve of a decaying tooth that it has not ached for years, by frequently using alum that has been dropped on a hot surface and left until it stopped "boiling." A piece the size of a kernel of corn was not all used for one tooth. It is good for hardening cucumbers after being taken from salt brine.

PERPETUAL PASTE.—Dissolve a teaspoonful of alum in a quart of warm water. When cold stir in as much flour as will give it the consistence of thick cream, being particular to beat up the lumps; stir in as much powdered resin as will lie on a half-dime, and throw in half a dozen cloves to give it a pleasant odor. Have on the fire a teacup of boiling water in a suitable vessel, pour the flour mixture into it, stirring well all the time. In a few minutes it will be of the consistence of porridge. Pour it into an earthen or china vessel, let it cool; lay a cover on; and put in a cool place. When needed for use take out a portion, and soften with warm water. Paste thus made can be kept twelve months. It is better than gum, as it does not gloss the paper, and can be written on.

[Louisville Home and Farm.]

Frank O. Herring, Esq., of the Champion Safe Works 251 and 252 Broadway, New York, reports the use of St. Jacob's Oil for a stiffness and soreness of the shoulder, with most pleasant and efficacious effects.

BAKED HALIBUT, CREOLE STYLE.—Put a halibut steak, weighing about a pound, in the middle of a pan; sprinkle it with a piece of garlic the size of a pea, cut fine; then spread with tomatoes enough to cover the fish; then cover with bread crumbs. Add a little butter and salt; then garnish the dish with more tomatoes, and bake twenty minutes. Better to bake on dish to serve on.

CURE FOR NEURALGIA —What is said to be a sure cure for this horrible ailment is nothing but a poultice and tea made from the common field thistle. The leaves are are macerated and used on the parts effected, as a poultice, while a small quantity of the leaves are boiled down to the proportion of a quart to a pint, and a small wineglass of the decoction drank before each meal.

LEMON TARTS.—Mix together the juice and rind of two large lemons, half pound powdered loaf sugar, two eggs well beaten, two-thirds cup crumbs of sponge cake; line your pans with paste all, and bake.

LEMON-BUTTER TARTS.—One pound white sugar, whites of six eggs and yolks of two, grated rind and juice of three lemons; cook twenty minutes over a slow fire, stirring all the time. Line pans with puff paste fill and bake.

QUALITY and efficacy considered, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is without exception the Best Cough preparation in the market. Price 25 cents a bottle.

HUMOROUS.

His Honor had before him at the Central Station Court a long-legged, bow-back man with a high-pitched voice who said he was a sailor.

"What are you sailing around here for before navigation has opened?"

"Well, you see, my name is Flint. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Well, my first name is Sam. You can spell Sam, I suppse?"

"Yes; you are Sam Flint, and I can spell both names."

"Well, I was up the lake chopping wood. The other day I got tired of that work and came down to see what the prospects were. Says I to myself; 'Maybe there'll be work, and maybe there won't be, but we'll glide down to Detroit."

"And you glad?"

"Yes, and when I got here I says again: 'Twon't be no time lost, for if you don't get work you can get drunk."

"And so you got drunk?"

"Yes; and when I found I was getting drunk I says to Sam Flint: "Sam my boy, they charge as much for a little drunk as a big one," and so Sam got a big drunk."

"And what else did you say?"

"Well, when I was haulded in I says to myself: "Samuel, you are booked for thirty days or I'm a goat, but you will save railroad fare and be handy by when the season opens."

"And did Sam say anything to that?"

"Not a word yer Honor, but he kind o' grinned and looked pleased. If I were you I'd lift him for a month."

But his Honor wouldn't. He turned him out in the spring slush to go back to his chopping.

MURDER will out, so will the fact that Carboline, a deodorized extract of petroleum, the natural hair renewer and restorer, is the best preparation ever invented and excels all other hair dressing, as thousands of genuine certificates now in our possession abundantly prove.

"DON'T you know it's very wrong to smoke, my boy?" said an elderly-looking lady in a railway waiting-room to Young America, who persisted in puffing a cheap cigarette, very much to the old lady's discomfort.

"Oh, I smoke for my health,' answered the boy, emitting a volume of smoke from his mouth which almost strangled the old lady.

"But you never heard of a cure from smoking,' continued the old lady, when she had regained consciousness.

'Oh, yes, I did,' presisted the boy, as he formed his mouth into a young Vesuvius working on full time; "that's the way they cure pigs."

"Smoke on then," quickly replied the old lady, "there's some hope for you yet!"

"THERE is one man who served with distinction in the army during the late war," said a malicious-looking individual, "who would make a 'fly" naval officer."

"Who?" asked an unsuspecting victim.

"General Sigel."

"Why would he make a "fly" naval man, as you term it?"

"Because he's a sea gull, you know."

Next day small-pox visited the malicious man's house, and the doctors say that they will make no effort to save him.

"WHY the——don't you put ashes on you pavement?" said the furious intruder.

"Did you fall down?" inquired the merchant commiseratingly.

"Fall down! I've split my pants from end to end. If you had put ashes on your pavement like a Christian, it would not have happened."

"Ah," returned the sympathetic merchant rubbing his hands, "I forgot to do that sure enough; but—I—can sell you a pair of pants very cheap."

VEGETINE is now prescribed in cases of Scrofula, and other diseases of the blood, by many of the best physicians, owing to its great success in diseases of this nature.

"THERE'S no place like home," repeated Mr. Henpeck, looking at a motto; and he heartily added. "I'm glad there isn't."

"HE's an honest young man," said the saloon keeper, with an approving smile. "He sold his vote to pay his whisky bill."

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

CHARLESTOWN.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that for Scrofula or Cankerous Humors or Rheumatic affections it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,
Mrs. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell Street.

Vegetine

For Dropsy.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., Oct. 19, 1877.

DR. H. R. STEVENS:

It is a pleasure to give my testimony for your valuable medicine. I was sick for a long time with Dropsy, under the doctor's care. He said it was water between the heart and liver. I received no benefit until I commenced taking the Vegetine; in fact, I was growing worse. I have tried many remedies; they did not help me. Vegetine is the medicine for Dropsy. I began to feel better after taking a few bottles. I have taken thirty bottles in all. I am perfectly well; never felt better. No one can feel more thankful than I do.

I am, dear sir, gratefully yours,
A. D. WHEELER.

ALL HAVE OBTAINED RELIEF.

SOUTH BERWICK, Me., Jan. 17, 1879.

H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the Vegetine, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking Vegetine, and all have obtained relief.

To All Our Friends.

Having had numberless inquiries for advertising cards from ladies in all parts of the country who are interested in the prevailing fashion of making "Card Collections," we are having printed for them a set of seven beautiful cards, each in six colors and on a gold background, in the very highest degree of art, illustrating Shakspeare's "Seven Ages of Man," We have spared no expense in these cards—they are simply little art gems. Our only aim has been to publish the finest cards yet shown. Applications for them have come in so rapidly that nearly the whole edition is engaged before the receipt by us of the cards from the artist. We have therefore been obliged to adopt the following plan for the distribution of the remainder: No more of the gilt Shakspeare cards, seven in the series, will be sent excepting upon the receipt of a statement from a grocer that the person applying for the cards has bought of him on that day at least seven bars of Dobbins' Electric Soap, with price paid for same. All applying in this manner will receive the full set of seven cards gratis by mail. This will insure us that our friends and patrons get their share of these beautiful designs, although it in no manner repays us for the cost of the cards. Your grocer has the soap or will get it, and the purchase by you of seven bars of it at one time will secure for you gratis seven really beautiful cards. The soap improves with age, and is an article of necessity in your house every week. Therefore you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one that you must have anyway. Please send us your application at once, and tell your lady friends making "Card Collections," to do the same. Grocers do not have the cards to deliver. Buy the soap of them, send us their bill, and we will mail you the cards free. Yours respectfully,
I. L. CRAGIN & Co., 116 South 4th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

P. S.—Ladies not wishing to buy soap can get the cards by remitting cost price, 25 cents.

A STORY is told of an exhilarated gentleman who was found, in one of the small hours, standing stock still under a pouring rain in the middle of a public square, holding out his night key as he earnestly peered into the enshrouding darkness.

"What do you mean standing out in such a storm?" queried the puzzled watchman.

"Why don't you see," hiccoughed the bewildered expectant, "that the square is revolving about us? I am waiting for my door to come round.

Humbugged Again.

I saw so much said about the merits of Hop Bitters, and my wife who was always doctoring, and never well, teased me so urgently to get her some, I concluded to be humbugged again; and I am glad I did, for in less than two months use of Hop Bitters my wife was cured and has remained so for eighteen months since. I like such humbugging.—H. T., St. Paul.—Pioneer Press.

THE restaurants have had such a run of custom that some of the waiters are a little inattentive. A stranger called for a plate of oysters, and after smelling them he said: "Waiter, are these oysters fresh?" "We are not running an intelligence office." "I would like to know if they are fresh." "Well, then, eat them, then you will know for yourself. You don't expect me to eat them for you, do you? Do I look like I was here to try old oysters?"

IT is the thing now to serve coffee with whipped cream. Cream that has been licked by a cat will not do.

"ONE good turn deserves another," as the man said when he turned the organ grinder out of the front yard.

"ANAKESIS"

Is an Infallible Cure for Piles.

Mr. Wm. J. Andrews, of Columbia, Tenn., writes the following:

MESSRS. NEUSTAEDTER & Co., New York:

GENTS—For upward of 20 years I have been afflicted with the Piles. When I first took them they were blind and very painful. For about ten years they continued as blind, then commenced bleeding. The hemorrhoids continued to increase until I was losing at every stool fully a gill of blood, and frequently, while standing at my desk, the blood would run down into my boots. I have had these hemorrhoids to last for several hours. In the meantime, like a drowning man, I was grasping at everything, trying to find relief. On one occasion I had them cauterized, which, after intense suffering for over a month, effected temporary relief, for a short time only however. About ten months since, while at stool, my eye fell on an advertisement headed in large letters, "Piles, send 2 cent stamp and get circular." I did so, and received a few "Plain Blunt Facts" in reply, after reading which, I concluded it was such plain common sense that I would give "Anakesis" a trial. I did so, and the result was, that after a few days use, the bleeding ceased and I have not suffered a moment's pain since. It is said that "a fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind." So, knowing quite a number of friends who were suffering like myself, I distributed quite a number of them, and from every one received a favorable report. I would not be without "Anakesis" for a hundred times its cost. To all who are afflicted with Piles I would say: "Give "Anakesis a trial and you will no longer be a sufferer."

WM. J. ANDREWS.

"Anakesis" is sold by all first-class druggists. Price $1.00 per box. Mailed free on receipt of price, by P. Neustaedter & Co., sole manufacturers of Anakesis, Box 3946, New York. Samples sent free to all sufferers upon application.

IT is evident that a large portion of our city people suffer from diseases of the liver, bowels or kidneys. Kidney-Wort is nature's remedy for them all.—Express.

RED HANDS.—Keep some oat-meal on the washstand, and as often as the hands are washed, rub a little of the oat-meal over them; then rinse it off, and, when dry, put on a little bit of pomade made as follows: Take ten cents' worth of white wax, three ditto of spermaceti, three ditto of powdered camphor and olive oil enough to make it the thickness of soap; put it in a gallipot, and let it stand in an oven to melt; and when cold, it will be found very good for the hands. Gloves, worn either in the day or night, will help to keep the hands white.

A world of Good.

One of the most popular medicines now before the American public, is Hop Bitters. You see it everywhere. People take it with good effect. It builds them up. It is not as pleasant to the taste as some other Bitters as it is not a whiskey drink. It is more like the old fashioned bone set tea that has done a world of good. If you don't feel just right try Hop Bitters.—Nunda News.
